

200
Texas Outlaws
and Lawmen
1835-1935

Actual gunfight. A photographer captured forever this gunfight as it actually occurred in El Paso at Seventh and El Paso streets in late 1907. (Courtesy of the El Paso Public Library, Southwest Collection)

200
Texas Outlaws
and Lawmen
1835-1935

LAURENCE J. YADON
WITH DAN ANDERSON

EDITED BY ROBERT BARR SMITH

PELICAN PUBLISHING COMPANY
GRETNNA 2008

Copyright © 2008
By Laurence J. Yadon and Dan Anderson
All rights reserved

The word "Pelican" and the depiction of a pelican are trademarks of Pelican Publishing Company, Inc., and are registered in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Yadon, Laurence J., 1948-

200 Texas outlaws and lawmen, 1835-1935 / by Laurence J. Yadon, with Dan Anderson ; edited by Robert Barr Smith.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-1-58980-514-9 (pbk. : alk. paper)

1. Outlaws—Texas—Biography. 2. Peace officers—Texas—
Biography. 3. Criminals—Texas—Biography. 4. Texas—History—
Republic, 1836-1846—Biography. 5. Texas—History—1846-
1950—Biography. 6. Frontier and pioneer life—Texas—Anecdotes.
7. Crime—Texas—History—Anecdotes. 8. Law enforcement—
Texas—History—Anecdotes. I. Anderson, Dan, 1950- II. Smith,
Robert B. (Robert Barr), 1933- III. Title. IV. Title: Two hundred
Texas outlaws and lawmen, 1835-1935.

F385.Y33 2008

364.1092'2764—dc22

[B]

2007045195

Printed in the United States of America
Published by Pelican Publishing Company, Inc.
1000 Burmaster Street, Gretna, Louisiana 70053

To the men and women of Texas law enforcement

CATTLE TRAILS

© 1988 University of Oklahoma Press

Old West Texas. (Courtesy of the University of Oklahoma Press)

Contents

Preface	9
Acknowledgments	11
Chronology of Significant Events	15
Texas Outlaw Hideouts, Hangouts, and Locales	23
Texas Outlaws and Lawmen	33
Bibliography	275
Index	285

Preface

This popular history is an outgrowth of our previous book, 100 Oklahoma Outlaws, Gangsters, and Lawmen, 1839-1939. Once again, we have largely relied upon the scholarship of leading Western writers for the stories told here. The principal author's lifelong interest in Texas was inspired by the frontier lives of rancher Samuel Burk Burnett and other distantly related Missouri kinsmen who settled in nineteenth-century Texas.

In this work, we have focused on notable luminaries of Lone Star outlawry and the law officers who pursued them from the opening days of the Republic to the middle years of the Great Depression. Loosely applying standards used by the eminent scholar Bill O'Neal in his seminal work Encyclopedia of Western Gunfighters, we have profiled the better known Texas outlaws who engaged in at least two gunfights or armed robberies in which significant gunfights occurred. Certain colorful characters, such as Judge Roy Bean, the self-appointed "Law West of the Pecos," and high-profile lawmen, outlaws, and gangsters from elsewhere who operated in Texas or who were one-time Texas residents, have also been included. These individual profiles cover the one hundred-year period beginning with the first declaration of Texas independence in assemblies in Goliad and elsewhere in 1835 and ending with the Depression-era crimes of Machine Gun Kelly and the Barrow gang. Altogether, this volume contains more than two hundred profiles featuring more than five hundred outlaws, gangsters, and lawmen, including a fistful of Texas feudists, Rio Grande border warriors, and Indian fighters.

We have also included a section identifying still accessible outlaw hideouts and locales for those who enjoy treading in the footsteps of history, as well as a Texas outlaw chronology. Usually, we have relied upon traditional narratives of events using standard sources and the works of authors generally accepted as reliable. However, in some instances we have rejected traditional narratives of events, offering alternative versions or related new interpretations based on recent scholarship or variations we deem reliable. Usually the variant theories are referenced, but not expounded, since this is a book of popular history rather than a work of academic scholarship. Generally we reviewed books, magazines, and periodicals available to us as late as January 2007.

Once again, the distinguished historian Robert Barr Smith (Tough Towns, Outlaw Tales of Oklaboma) took time from his own writing schedule to guide our efforts as Consulting Editor. Nevertheless the judgments we have made concerning the relative credibility of competing sources, and any errors sifting fact from mythology, have been our own.

Regrettably, but of necessity, a great many colorful, compelling Texas outlaws and lawmen have been set aside for another time. And so, dear reader, enjoy these pages with the assurance that our Texas outlaw tour has only just begun.

Laurence Yadon, Tulsa, Oklahoma

Dan Anderson, Katy, Texas

Robert Barr Smith, Consulting Editor, Norman, Oklahoma

Acknowledgments

Research for this project was performed in conjunction with our previous work, 100 Oklahoma Outlaws, Gangsters, and Lawmen, 1839-1939. Accordingly a number of organizations assisted the authors in the research for these projects over the past four years. These institutions included but were not limited to the Flying Fingers Typing Service, Sand Springs, Oklahoma; Texas Ranger Museum, Waco, Texas; the Haley Library; Harris County Public Library; Dallas Public Library; Fort Bend County Public Library; Houston City Public Library; Young County Historical Commission; City-County Library, Tulsa, Oklahoma; Oklahoma Historical Society; Western History Collection, University of Oklahoma Library; Oklahoma Heritage Association; Oklahoma Centennial Commission; Woolaroc Museum, Bartlesville, Oklahoma; Texas Jack Association; Oklahombres, Inc.; Oklahoma Outlaws, Lawmen History Association; Tulsa Police Department; Public Library, Enid, Oklahoma; Beryl Ford Collection, Tulsa; Oklahoma Publishing Company; Lenapah Historical Society; the University of Tulsa; Kansas State Historical Society; Will Rogers Museum; National Cowboy Hall of Fame; Gilcrease Museum; Enid Public Library; Boone County Heritage Museum, Harrison, Arkansas; and the Lincoln Heritage Trust, Lincoln, New Mexico.

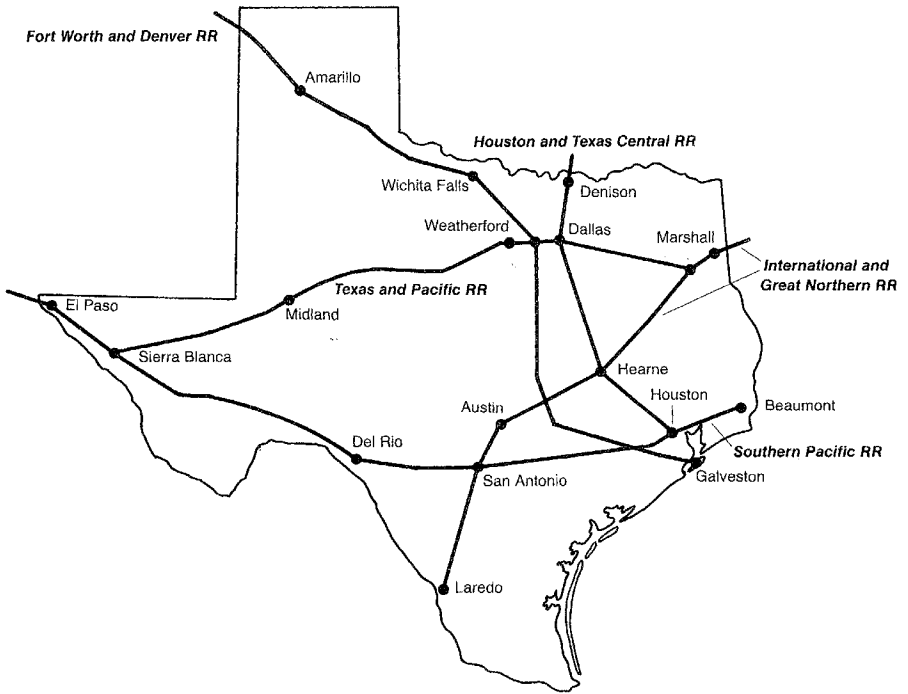

Individuals who assisted us in these two projects have included Bill O'Neal, Nancy Samuelson, Bob Ernst, Ron Trezell, Armand DeGregoris, John R. Lovett, Mike Tower, Michael and Suzanne Wallis, Bob Alexander, Robert K. DeArment, David Johnson, Chuck Parsons, Rick Miller, Bill O'Neal, Bob Ernst, Rod Dent, Gary Youell, Phil Edwards, Terry Zinn, Michael Koch, Diron Ahlquist, Willie Jones, Clyda Franks, Emily Lovick, Lisa Keys, Joseph Calloway Yadon (ardent researcher and author's son), Danielle Williams, Irene and Larry Chance, Glendon Floyd, Curt Johnson, Dee Cordry, Rik Helmerich, and Herman Kirkwood. Thanks are also due to Helen J. Gaines, Jim Bradshaw, Adrienne Grimmett, Beth Andreson, Jim

Hamilton, Dana Harrison MacMoy, Mary Phillips, Stacy M. Rogers, Rand McKinney, Jana Swartwood, Gini Moore Campbell, and Phillip W. Steele. We are especially thankful for the assistance of Mr. Dorman Holub, Chairman, Young County Historical Society, as well as Jim Bradshaw, passionate archivist with The Haley Memorial Library & History Center at Midland, Texas; Sgt. Kevin F. Foster, Fort Worth Police historian; Jane Soutner with the Texas History Division of the Dallas Public Library; and Brian Burns, Information Specialist at the Border Heritage Center of the El Paso Public Library. Special thanks also to Ashley Schmidt and Dana Brittain at the Fort Bend County Library—Cinco Ranch Branch. Thanks to the good folks at the Texas Ranger Hall of Fame and Museum at Waco.

Lastly, without the patient guidance of our Consulting Editor, Robert Barr Smith, and the patient support of our respective spouses, Martha Yadon and Julia Anderson, this book would not have been possible.

200
Texas Outlaws
and Lawmen
1835-1935

Major Railroads in Texas. (Texas: A Modern History, by David G. McComb, copyright 1999. Courtesy of the University of Texas Press)